

Special 1-day Democracy School

Saturday November 7th, 2009 at
Global Exchange in San Francisco

In your community, who decides if corporations can pollute or drive local business out?

From water withdrawal to mining, GMOs, refineries and more, the corporate few wield the law against our communities, endangering our health, safety, and the environment.

We can change that.

This empowering training teaches dramatic new ways of confronting corporate power and explores how more than 120 communities across the country have decided to do something different, enacting cutting-edge laws that place the rights of communities and nature over the claimed "rights" of corporations.

LECTURERS:

Ben Price: Project Director for CELDF. Community organizer based in PA.

Shannon Biggs: Rights Based Campaign Director for Global Exchange and co-author of "Building the Green Economy: Success Stories from the Grass Roots"

ENROLLMENT:

New material for 2009 covered in 1 day instead of 3
Classes limited to 30 people of all interests and occupations.
Total Cost for this empowering training is $65.

We are offering a $15 early bird discount if fully registered prior to Sept. 1st, 2009 (total early bird cost $50)

150 page curriculum mailed 2 weeks before course.

Snacks and breakfast provided.

REGISTRATION:

Shannon Biggs: shannon@globalexchange.org and 415.575.5540 or,
Kylie Nealis: kylie@globalexchange.org

GLOBAL  EXCHANGE

building people to people ties